1 Commercial Aviation

Commercial aviation continues to expand within the Middle East, driven largely by the growth in the supply and demand by major gulf carriers. These airlines have committed to further developing their fleets and routes in order to create an aviation hub within the Middle East to boost tourism, business travel and the economy. Saudi Arabia has had one of the most highly regulated aviation markets in the world and limited foreign involvement. But rising population and affluence has led to a demand for more services. GACA expects annual passenger traffic to soar from 65 million in 2012 to 100 million by 2020, including almost a doubling of domestic traffic to 28.5 million.

2 Business & General Aviation

Business aviation in the Middle East continues to see strong growth with both movements and the number of aircraft registered increasing steadily. Saudi Arabia represents 30% of the aircraft registered in the Middle East. Saudi Arabia is one of the largest private jet & GA markets in the Middle East.

The rapidly growing economies of the GCC are helping to cement business aviation as a cornerstone of the Middle East Aerospace Industry for years to come :

Middle East regional fleet to triple by 2036.

3 Aerospace & Defence

Saudi Arabia is one of the biggest markets in the Defence sector in the Middle East.

By participating at Saudi Airshow, you will meet organizations and global influencers all under one roof. Saudi Airshow provides a comprehensive Civil and Military Delegations Programme that allows our exhibitors to engage with key decision makers and influencers.

4 Airport Infrastructure and Suppliers

The development of airport infrastructure across the globe is steadily increasing as a result of the growing demand for both domestic and international air travel.

It is essential that airport planning and infrastructure development supports safe, functional, capacity balanced and user-friendly airports.

With 7 airports in Saudi Arabia which will be entirely refurbished for the opening market of business tourism, the Saudi Airshow will be an excellent platform to showcase your company's airport products and services.

Why Exhibit ?

Aviation will play an essential role in the diversification and expansion of the Saudi economy through the establishment of new airports and the expansion of existing facilities. The entry of new participants into the market will be an important development.

The advantages that a thriving aviation industry can bring to a nation are immense. The aviation industry encompasses dozens of sectors from construction companies that build airport facilities to aviation fuel suppliers and even manufacturers of goods sold in airport retail outlets.

An increase in tourism will further enhance Saudi Arabia's aviation industry, providing immense employment and training opportunities for the nation's youth.

Empowering the youth by providing the environment and opportunities for them to flourish in the Kingdom is key to achieving Vision 2030.

The 2030 vision will create many opportunities in the aviation sector in Saudi Arabia for both established companies willing to expand their business and new players seeking to enter the Saudi market.
